Sabre Travel Network re-signs full content deals with more than a dozen EMEA airlines

Five new airlines to participate in the Sabre GDS

Sabre Travel Network has re-signed new full-content travel marketing agreements with 13 airlines operating from Europe, Africa and the Middle East, bringing to 343 the number of airlines whose full range of published fares and inventory are available to all traditional and Internet-based travel agencies using the Sabre global distribution system (GDS). This includes published fares that the airlines sell through any third-party Web site or their own Web site and reservations offices.

The most recent agreements, known as travel marketing agreements (TMAs) to better reflect the marketing approach and services of the new agreements, have been signed with Air Algeria, Air Austral, Air Berlin, Air Europa, Air Malta, Arkefly, Condor, Croatia, Ethiopian Airlines, Malev Hungarian Airlines, Polish Airlines, Syrian Arab Airlines and Tunisair.

The TMAs also protect SabreConnected travel agencies from any surcharges or service fees that the airlines may implement. They also provide more stability to the market since all the TMAs extend the standard rolling 30 day agreement in the previous participating carrier agreements to one year or more.

Five other airlines, Zanair, KDAvia, Antrak Air Ghana, Zambian Airways and Zambian Skyways have started distributing through the Sabre GDS for the first time.

Sabre Travel Network has a pricing model for airlines based on the value of its distribution network. The model includes lower fees for distribution in home markets where carriers have greater brand awareness and market share and higher fees for international markets where they need more help marketing to international travellers. More than 80 percent of carriers participating in the Sabre GDS are now covered under the TMA agreements.
