Key benefits

- Streamline operations by offering a preferred itinerary management app
- Gain insight into trips booked outside the managed channel:
 - Duty of care – keep track of your travelers abroad
 - Reporting – get a more accurate picture of traveler spend and behavior
- Use additional data visibility in negotiation with suppliers
- Stay in touch with travelers on the road
- Reinforce key messaging while travelers are on the road

Travel manager benefits

TripCase Corporate gives travel managers newfound visibility into bookings made outside of the managed travel program. Travelers can designate when their trip is for business, allowing TripCase to capture the itinerary and share with a company via an easy-to-read, self-service dashboard. Even information on reservations booked outside of the managed channel is captured and may be shared within the dashboard, providing a more complete picture of a company's travel activities and greater understanding of traveler behavior.

Traveler benefits

Corporations can automate the TripCase Corporate sign-up process for travelers, reinforce policy-compliant and preferred vendor bookings, and send relevant time- and location-based policy messages to travelers on the road. Travelers will also benefit by being able to designate trips and items of trips as business. They can view their corporate itineraries free of third-party advertisements and with their company branding intact.

Company benefits

Corporations can send employees important policy information, security notices, safety tips and more while they travel. These alerts help reinforce policy compliance and safety precautions at the most relevant and critical point in the trip process – while a traveler is on the road. TripCase Corporate ensures privacy by preventing data from being shared with third parties. Coming soon, corporations will be given access to a set of development tools that will allow them to send multi-GDS and non-GDS trip information such as meetings, ground transportation and restaurant reservations into TripCase through a set of APIs. These same tools will soon allow corporations to extract information from a TripCase itinerary for custom reporting capabilities.
